As a global employer and international development agency, Christian Aid is committed to promoting equality, valuing diversity, creating an inclusive environment and combating unfair treatment. Equality of opportunity and freedom from discrimination is a fundamental human right and we will exercise leadership and commitment in promoting this right.

Christian Aid believes this will be achieved through its roles as:

- organisation that involves volunteers and supporters
- in the communities where we work

It is Christian Aid’s policy to respect the diversity of all employees, prospective employees, volunteers, partners, beneficiaries, contractors and suppliers and treat them fairly and equally regardless of characteristics such as gender, sexual orientation, family status, race, caste, culture, nationality, ethnic or national origin, religious belief, age, physical or mental ability, educational background, working patterns, responsibility for dependants, union membership, political affiliation.

This policy applies to recruitment and selection, terms and conditions of employment (including pay, promotion, training and development, performance management, job evaluation) and every other aspect of employment. It also applies to ways of working with volunteers and supporters and how we treat our partners.

Diversity includes all the characteristics, experiences and cultural influences that make each of us unique individuals. Inclusion means that all are welcome at Christian Aid and will be treated with respect and dignity in line with the Christian Aid values, irrespective of their background.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Christian Aid is committed to promoting dignity and basic rights of every person, and works with those that are committed to supporting poor and marginalised communities to eradicate poverty and promote basic rights and justice.

Through the corporate strategy ‘Turning Hope into Action’, Christian Aid’s initiatives aim to foster strong and cohesive communities that build individual and community capacity, and where all people are recognised as being of equal worth and share common values and aspirations.

The core ethos for the organisation is improving the life chances of the individual and promoting social and economic inclusion. Diversity and inclusion in Christian Aid is aligned to this vision.

Christian Aid recognises the unique differences between individuals and aims to create an environment that values and respects the talent and contribution of all people.
Christian Aid will challenge and support new and existing partners in their efforts to increase diversity awareness, knowledge and skills in their organisation and in the communities, through the provision of appropriate capacity building and resources.

Christian Aid expects that all employees take individual responsibility to ensure they comply with this policy and fully support and promote the principles of diversity and inclusiveness and encourages all those who interact with it to support these principles.

Christian Aid will strive for continuous improvement by identifying and promoting best practice and will challenge and address poor practice.

Any breach or alleged breach of the policy will be taken seriously, investigated fully and may result in action under one or more of the organisation's harassment, disciplinary, grievance or whistleblowing procedures. In serious cases such behaviour may constitute gross misconduct and may result in dismissal.
