

A quiz is a brilliant way to connect with your friends and family and raise funds for Christian Aid from home.

Read on for our easy pointers and download our brand new quiz from caweek.org/resources
Quiz answers will be published online on 31 May at caweek.org/quizanswers or are available on request from hello@christian-aid.org

Running your quiz

If you are planning an online quiz, we recommend that you use the TapSimple events platform where you can speak directly to your audience and collect donations in one place.

Alternatively, you could use Zoom, Facebook Live or YouTube to present to an audience and use JustGiving to collect donations.

You can also direct participants to give online at caid.org.uk/eventspay or via our JustGiving page: justgiving.com/campaign/caw2021

If you are a church or group please use your name and OR number in your web address or the title of your page. If you're planning multiple events you can set up your JustGiving page as a team page following our instructions at caweek.org/resources

Against the clock

If you don't fancy leading your quiz live (reading the questions out as you go along) you could run your online quiz 'against the clock' instead. To do this, simply post the quiz questions at a set time (eg, 8pm) and give your participants time to tackle the quiz. We recommend 30 to 45 minutes.

Florence Muthiani and her neighbours' children that regularly play by her house. Your donations this Christian Aid Week are needed more than ever to help people living in poverty around the world.

You can then post the answers and let the quizzers score themselves, and ask them to share their results and comments as they go along in the event chat. This is the simplest option and should be easy to do.

Our top tips for a live event are:

- Make sure to write the time of your quiz in the event details, so people know when you're going live.
- Post a video beforehand to build some excitement ahead of the event and share your plans. You could share why you've chosen to hold a fundraiser for Christian Aid.
- We recommend you use a laptop with a built-in camera or webcam if possible, so you can easily position the screen and won't have to hold the device. If you don't have a laptop, it's perfectly fine to use a mobile phone but if you are filming your whole event you may need a tripod to hold the phone steady.
- Make sure you record yourself with minimal sound interruption and ensure that any light sources are in front of you (slightly to the side) rather than behind you to achieve a good picture quality.
- During the quiz, read out and respond to people's comments as they are posting to make them feel included and the event more interactive.
- Get people to mark their answers and ask them to share how many got full marks and so on and celebrate with them.

Closing your quiz

However you choose to run the quiz, your participants can team up and challenge each other. Households can compete against each other, and friends and families in different locations can play together or challenge each other using video calling apps such as WhatsApp, Facetime and Skype.

When your quiz has finished, be sure to thank people for joining you and share with them what has been raised if you are able to.
